- Wrap-up

Why Are We Here?

- Initiate the environmental analysis for renewal of Sacramento River Settlement contracts
- Receive comments from contractors, public, and interested parties
- Identify significant contract and environmental issues

Sac River Settlement Contracts

- 16 districts and 122 individuals
- ~2.2 MAF of water
- Contracts expire March 31, 2004
- Types of water:
  - Base Supply
  - Project Water

Water Supply

- Prior to Shasta Dam the need for Project Water arose because of the quantities of water available were deficient during certain months
- Deficiency was determined by studies and negotiations
- Average deficiency was applied to estimated water right yield to determine Base Supply and Project Water

Definition of Base Supply

Base Supply is the quantity of water which the US agrees may be diverted by the Contractor from its source of supply each month during the period April through October of each year without payment to the US for such quantities diverted.

Definition of Project Water

Project Water is all water diverted or scheduled to be diverted each month during the period April through October of each year by the Contractor from its source of supply which is in excess of Base Supply.
